To Whom It May Concern:

I'm not the shiniest nickel in the bag but even I can figure out this is one terrible idea.

First, it is crazy from an economic standpoint. People who do not want a service will be forced to pay for the service for someone else who may not know they want it until they find it is free.

Second, it puts the sociological and moral choice of birth control and abortions that are favored by the present administration in the legally mandated position.

This is just one example of President Obama's liberal team run amock with the will of the people.

Larry
